Wild West Papua: Route I

Sorong to Kaimana | Daram, Jef Pele, Lili and Kepotsol, Wayil and more

Triton Bay is Indonesia's latest must-see destination, with abundant soft corals, schools of fish that literally block out the light and one of the most spectacular whale shark experiences anywhere on the planet.

Offshore, the Bomberai Peninsula has seamounts literally buzzing with marine life.

The Pisang Islands add occasional manta ray flypasts and spectacularly colourful reefs.

In Misool, grey, white-tip and black-tip reef sharks weave through clouds of fish, with dogtooth tuna and mobula rays hunting amid the chaos.

Your route

Areas are shown in the order visited. Sites and dives change with the weather, the sea conditions and the captain's decisions.

STOP 1

Daram

The large island of Daram marks the easternmost boundary of the Misool region.
The vast majority of the dive sites are not located around the island itself, but rather a short distance to the north-west.
They are undoubtedly some of the most astonishing and colourful in the entire area.
Dive sites include Andiamo, Warna Berwarna, Candy Store, Fish Finger.

STOP 2

Jef Pele, Lili and Kepotsol

The large island of Jef Pele, as well as the nearby Lili and Kepotsol groups, do not suffer from the concentration of divers and yachts that now visit the anchorages and marine attractions further east.
However, they do feature some excellent diving opportunities.
The north-western edge of Jef Pele is home to Kaleidoscope Ridge, the anchorage's signature site.

STOP 3

The Lili and Kepotsol Island Groups

Dive sites include Lili, Toblerone, Kaleidoscope Ridge, Netted Corner, Blue Hole.

STOP 4

Wayil

The Wayil dive sites are mostly clustered around the western end of Wayilbatan Island.
Comprising multi-peaked seamounts, karst island ridges, and exciting passages, they all feature abundant coral growth and a wealth of both pelagic and reef-dwelling marine life.
At Wayil, there is something for every level of diver.
Dive sites include Dogleg Ridge, Barracuda Rock, Layer Cake, Elephant Wall, The Four Kings, Gamechanger.

STOP 5

Fiabacet and Boo

The dive sites in and around Fiabacet and Boo are, without exaggeration, among the most exceptional not only in Raja Ampat and Indonesia, but arguably across the entire planet.
This remote corner of the Coral Triangle offers a truly world-class underwater experience that continues to captivate even the most seasoned divers.
Dive sites include Nudi Rock, Tank Rock Boo West, Whale Rock (Fiabacet), Heart of Glass, Boo Rocks (Boo Windows), Boo East.

STOP 6

The Pisang Islands

The Pisang Islands are situated on their own in the Ceram Sea, only 62 nautical miles from the south-east Misool archipelago and 24 nautical miles from the north-western corner of the Bomberai Peninsula.
The healthy reefs and abundant marine life make these anchorages much more than just a waypoint for dive yachts transiting between Raja Ampat and Triton Bay.
Dive sites include Triple Crown, North Sencan, Guitar Reef, Fishnet, Sencan Seamount, Tartaruga Seamounts.

STOP 7

Teluk Sebakor

Teluk Sebakor extends deep into the western coastline of the Bomberai Peninsula, framed by Tanjung Turkanggur to the north and Tanjung Tongerai to the south.
This vast bay is a stunning mosaic of shallow reefs, winding waterways, and dense mangrove forests that transition into the untamed interior of Papua.
Dive sites include Knuckle Head, Kampung Mas, Pantai Kecil, Toran Finger, Omuradat.

STOP 8

The Momon Headland

Scuba diving along the rarely travelled coastline of the Bomberai Peninsula is legendary, and the sites at Momon are no exception.
The reefs surrounding the small islands around the headland are proving to hide some prolific dive sites, as well as some very unusual marine life sightings.
One such site, the spectacular Batu Cantik, is centred around a set of small rocky islands that run parallel with the mainland shore.
Dive sites include Momon Seamount, Shallows & Ridge, Devil's Gate, Sweetspot.

STOP 9

Dramai and South Aiduma

South Aiduma and the nearby Dramai Island, situated at the southern tip of the Iris Strait, offer a breathtaking seascape that is a paradise for scuba diving enthusiasts.
Dive sites include Goby Gully, Christmas Rock, Heaven, Batu Jeruk.

STOP 10

North Aiduma

Triton Bay carves into the breathtaking south-western coastline of West Papua, forming a dazzling underwater paradise at the neck of the Birdshead Peninsula.
Just offshore, Aiduma Island runs parallel to the mainland, separated by the narrow Iris Strait, at its tightest point, less than a mile wide.
This remote and pristine region is a gateway to one of Indonesia's most extraordinary marine ecosystems.
Dive sites include White Rock Falls, Three Rocks, Faukate, Rainbow, Saruenus, Little Komodo.

STOP 11

Namatote and Mauwara

If Namatote Island is known for one thing, it's the extraordinary, up-close encounters with majestic whale sharks.
Separated from the West Papuan mainland by a narrow strait, this island is home to numerous traditional fishing platforms, or bagans, which are strategically positioned at both the northern and southern ends of the waterway.
Dive sites include North Namatote Bagans, Lobo Village, Bat Cave, Walkers Reef, Awarawis Island, Deep Rock.
