Deep South: Kooddoo to Male

Kooddoo to Male | Huvadhoo, Meemu, Vaavu and the central atolls

Adventurous channel dives in the far south, then a journey back north through the manta stations to the central atolls.

The Huvadhoo channels are a world famous dive area, with silvertip, hammerhead and bull sharks and large schools of grey reef sharks.

Night snorkelling with whale sharks follows in the evening, with a good chance of more than one visitor.

A day in Meemu Atoll brings the manta cleaning stations, and in Vaavu Atoll an evening dive means nurse sharks and stingrays in clear lagoons.

The central atolls finish the week with shark filled channels, the most rewarding manta stations and once in a lifetime night dives.

What the week holds

The week starts with channel dives in currents rich in pelagic life.
The route includes the Huvadhoo channels, a world famous dive area with silvertip, hammerhead and bull sharks and large schools of grey reef sharks.
In the evening the crew moves to the back of the boat for night snorkelling with whale sharks. There is a good chance of more than one visitor, and if you stay up late a one to one encounter is possible.
A day in Meemu Atoll brings the manta cleaning stations, and in Vaavu Atoll you spend an evening diving with nurse sharks and stingrays in clear lagoons.
The week finishes in the central atolls with relaxed pinnacle and wall dives, from shark filled channels to the most rewarding manta stations and once in a lifetime night dives.

WORTH KNOWING

Key notes

Good to know

Dives are limited to 30 metres. A dive computer is compulsory, and diving alone and decompression dives are not allowed.

Good to know

Night dives and dives deeper than 18 metres are for advanced certified divers, and you can upgrade your certification on board.

Good to know

Many sites on the Deep South routes are swept by very strong currents, so these cruises are recommended for divers with an advanced certification and at least 100 logged dives.
